New Year's Honors Includes Town Barrister

Included in the list of King's Council appointed over the New Year, is the name of Joseph A. MacKenzie, one of our local barristers, and congratulations are extended him on this elevation.

Mr. MacKenzie was born in Prince Edward Island and is a son of the late Angus MacKenzie of Vernon, in that Province. He was educated at St. Francis College, Prince of Wales College and completed his university training at the University of Alberta.

Mr. MacKenzie came to Alberta in 1910 and in January, 1914, became a law student in the office of the late E. B. Cogswell, K.C., of Edmonton, to whom he was articled, and at the same time followed the course leading to the degree of Bachelor of Laws at the University. At a later date he studied law in the office of the original firm of Parlos, Freeman and Abbott.

Mr. MacKenzie passed his first bar examination in the spring of 1918 and also qualified for the degree of LL.B. With a number of other Edmonton law students and young barristers, he then enlisted in the 72nd (Queen's) Battery, C.P.A., C.E.F., at Kingston, Ontario and proceeded overseas with a draft. He was wounded near Valenciennes in 1918.

After being called to the Alberta Bar on his return from Overseas, Mr. MacKenzie practiced law at Chisvau for five years and in 1924 located at Wainwright where he formed a partnership with Mr. J. H. Kennedy. The latter gentleman retired from active law practice in 1931, since which time Mr. MacKenzie has practiced alone. In 1926 he married Olive Mulder, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. G. Pollock of Chisvau. Five daughters and three sons have been born as a result of this union.

Mr. MacKenzie is President of the local branch of the Canadian Legion, R.E.S.L., and is a Past President of the Wainwright Board of Trade, being now a member of the executive of that body. In the years 1936 and 1941 he was Census Commissioner for the Federal Electoral District of Edmonton under the Farmers-Creditors' Arrangement Act. For the past two years he has been Town Solicitor for the Town of Wainwright and is also Solicitor for the Municipal District of Olds, Edge No. 422.

To Float War Loan For Half Billion, Feb.

OTTAWA—The fourth war loan of the second Great War will be floated in February with an objective of about $500,000,000, Finance Minister Bailey has announced.

The announcement came as the extension of war to the Pacific Ocean opened up new prospects of danger to Canada and brought, in the words of the Finance Minister, "a corresponding increase in the urgency of our financial requirements."

He disclosed a permanent "National War Finance Committee" is being set up to handle not only war loans, but the war savings certificates campaign. The committee will be headed by George W. Spence, general manager of the Bank of Montreal, who headed the national committee for the Victory Loan campaign of last June.

Notes of interest and maturity dates for the new loan have not been settled, but Mr. Bailey said it is probable bonds will be offered in denominations from $50 up. As in the case of earlier loans, the money will be borrowed in Canada and will be repaid in Canadian funds.

In announcing the merging of the war savings and loan committee, Mr. Bailey said the purpose of the new body will be "to promote the greatest possible flow of war funds into the national Treasury through the voluntary purchase by the people of war loans, bonds and war savings certificates."

If the new loan reaches its objective it will bring total borrowing by the Government from the Canadian people during the present war to more than $2,000,000,000. The three previous loans brought a total of more than $1,400,000,000 into the Treasury, including conversions of previous issues. Cash proceeds from the sale of war savings certificates to date amounts to about $100,000,000.

Federal Order Gives Farmer Big Benefit

Payments to farmers in Alberta of approximately six million dollars will start immediately according to Mr. W. C. Morris, director in this province for the wheat acreage reduction scheme.

Although generally known for some time, Ottawa in recent days has made the year 1941 officially an emergency one in Alberta under terms of the Prairie Farm Assistance Act. This was done by order-in-council.

It simply means that sufficient townships in the province have suffered such poor crops as to warrant special assistance to farmers.

In the emergency years the agricultural minister may make awards to prize producers in areas where the wheat yield has been light. If the average yield in a specified section is more than eight but not more than 12 bushels to the acre the payment stipulated is ten cents for each acre of cultivated land by which the average price for wheat is less than 90 cents a bushel.

If the average yield is more than four and not more than eight bushels an acre the award is $1.50 an acre and if not more than four bushels an acre the award is $2 an acre.

In any event no payment is made on more than one-half the cultivated land with a maximum of 200 acres.

BOARD OF TRADE MONTHLY MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of the Wainwright Board of Trade will be a DINNER MEETING at the Wainwright Hotel Tonight (WEDNESDAY) at SEVEN P.M. Sharp.

All interested are required to be in attendance; there is important business to deal with.

By Order,
L. Backer, Sec.

Another Old-Timer Called To Reward

Death called another old-timer on Sunday morning last in the person of Mr. John Benjamin Billie, at the age of 77 years. Old age and heart trouble was the cause of his demise.

The late Mr. Billie came to Wainwright from his home in Sussex, England, in 1912, and has resided at the home of his nephew, Mr. Alf Mudge ever since that time. He was unmarried, and was the last survivor of his family.

In earlier days he was a frequent visitor to town from the farm, but lately his journeys from the farm have been few and far between, although he enjoyed meeting old associates and reminiscing with them.

The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon, when the rector of St. Thomas' conducted the last and ritual of the Anglican church. Interment was at Wainwright cemetery with Messrs. F. Church, H. C. Driver, A. Woodward and Joe McClelland acting as pallbearers.

McLeod's parlors were in charge.

THANK YOU!

With this, the first number of the New Year, we take the opportunity which the season presents to us of saying "Thank You" to the many supporters, advertisers and readers who have all assisted us to carry on during the year just gone.

In the midst of war and distress throughout the world, the friendships we have made, and the confidence and trust we can put in our friends means a great deal to all of us, and it is especially heartening at the commencement of a new year to voice appreciation for these things.

With you all we try to "do our bit." We meet our discouragements and our setbacks, and, like you, we try to overcome them, and to press on. It is because of the unfailing friendship of you and your neighbor that we express our belief that the future will be better than the past, and extend the fervent hope that the year we are just entering will be far more happiness for the peoples of the world than 1941 brought to us. May 1942 be a much brighter and more prosperous year than the past one, and close with a fulfillment of peace, happiness and contentment for us all.

THE EDITOR.

Annual Report Of Wainwright Unit, V.V.R.

The following is the annual report submitted by the Wainwright Unit of the V.V.R. as compiled by the Secretary Pro Tem, outlining activities since its inception from April to the end of the year 1941.

The Wainwright Unit was formed with the strength of 42 members, which has decreased at the end of the year to 34 members. As a result of death in the ranks, some of the members leaving the district and others joining up with the active forces. This still leaves an active body to be reckoned with, who due to their untiring efforts throughout the year, and knowledge gained, will prove to be valuable should they be called upon in an emergency.

The work carried out by the Unit, consisting of foot and arms drill, tactics, musketry and firing practice; the latter being carried out twice weekly during the summer months, and provided some excellent rifle shots as well as greatly improved our knowledge in the use of small arms. This practice is being kept up during the winter months in the Town Hall basement with permission of the Mayor and Councillors, whose support is greatly appreciated by the Unit.

With the weekly practice and lectures a monthly Provincial small arms competition is being held throughout the Province during the winter. The Wainwright Unit who are in this competition have so far proven to be able to hold their own with the best of them, and hope to reach the top score and be in the finals by spring.

The most important factor has been in the intelligence work, carried on by this Unit. With the co-operation of the Neighboring Units of the V.V.R., a large field was covered, and information of note turned over to the proper authorities. Too much emphasis cannot be stressed on this work, where constant vigilance is necessary. It so often is said, "nothing can happen to this district." The only explanation is, if the slogan can be used, "Remember Pearl Harbor," or any other points that have unexpectedly been attacked. It is better to be prepared for any eventuality.

During the latter part of the year this unit has been called upon to carry out further duties, as A.R.P. work, familiarizing itself with strategic and vulnerable points in the district. The Unit is divided into sections, detailing each section to cover a portion of the area allotted to it, and their services are required, under authority of the town fathers. This makes it necessary for the unit to become familiar with the ground to be covered.

Classes are already being formed to continue the work of Military Sanitation and First Aid throughout the winter months. This work will prove very essential in view of the heavy demand on the Medical Staff by the active service forces. The local medical officers have kindly offered their assistance in conducting this training which will prove of great benefit to the district.

In conclusion, the Commander of the Wainwright Unit V.V.R. has requested that all members make every effort during the year 1942 to give their support to this work. During the past year there has been some cases of delinquency in the ranks, which may have been assisted due to other urgent duties, but in these trying times the members are only asked to give about 2 hours a week of their time, which is of benefit to themselves and will place them in a better position to be of assistance to the district.

The rank and file of the unit through their Commander wish to express their appreciation to the citizens of Wainwright for their valued support during the past year, and hope that the Unit will prove worthy of the same should they be called upon.

'Neath the all-beholding sun,
That wrong is done to you;
And they are always most true
Whose love of right is for themselves
And not for all the race."

As we stand on the threshold of the new year we realize that 1942 will probably be one of the most fruitful years in the history of mankind, bringing to each of us new opportunities for growth and service.

One such opportunity is found in the work of the Red Cross. It is an organization that is international in scope, and its service is to those whose need is greatest—the wounded, the prisoners, and those made homeless and destitute by ruthless war. Let us remember our great Commander's words "In as much as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, My brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

We would like to see every adult in Wainwright and vicinity to join up and working member of the local branch of the Canadian Red Cross, and every child of school age an active member of the Junior Red Cross. Have YOU joined yet?

We gratefully acknowledge receipt of the following Greenfields War Service League, $10.00, (Greenfields Ladies donated a quilt recently which we are not sure was previously acknowledged). L. O. B. A. made a donation of sugar.

Recruiting Figures Up For December

Increase of 28 recruits enlisted in December at the Prince of Wales armory in Edmonton was the number enlisted during November, was reported Saturday by Maj. B. W. Edwards, adjutant of No. 12A District Depot.

Two hundred and fourteen men were attested for service in December as compared with 198 in November. Maj. Edwards stated the figure might have been higher if it had not been for Christmas and New Year's holidays. He expressed confidence that recruiting from now on would increase.

Local Red Cross Branch Reports Big Year In 1941

Quite a nice turnout attended the annual meeting of the local branch of the Canadian Red Cross held on Monday last, when Mrs. O. R. Hamish, the president occupied the chair.

In opening the meeting, the president stated her pleasure at such a nice gathering, which proved the great interest being taken in the work of the Wainwright branch, and said that all might well be proud of the work which had been accomplished during the past year.

In closing her remarks, she mentioned that the reports of the officers which were to be presented demanded full congratulations to all those responsible for the results of their efforts, and expressed her sincere thanks to all the officers and executive for the great help being given to her in her chairmanship of that body.

The report of Mr. H. S. C. Smart, the Secretary, was as follows:

The past year has been a very active one for this branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society. The Executive Committee has met regularly each month with a very good average attendance. We regret the loss of several active workers on the Executive, by removal from town, but other willing workers have taken their places.

Members of this Branch in good standing as at December 31, 1941 total 178. I would like to point out here that to retain its corporate existence and charter a Red Cross Branch must re-enroll its members each year. I would therefore invite all lapsed members to kindly take out their renewal cards promptly and we would also welcome new members. Membership only costs $1.00, and this keeps one in good standing for twelve months.

Many and various ways and means of raising funds for the carrying on of the work of this Branch have been thought up and used by the Executive Committee during the year with the excellent results which the Treasurer's report will reveal. Mentioning some of these we commend the results of the Blind and Deaf, Picture Shows in Country Schools, Catering at Auction Sales, Our own Committee at Auction Sales, Hot Dog Stand, Red Cross sponsored Picture Shows in Elite Theatre, Stampede and Sports Commission, Volunteering Tasks, Commission and sale of Cook Books. All of these and other efforts represent true devotion to the cause of the Red Cross. In addition to these endeavors we gratefully acknowledge the support and assistance of all individuals, organizations and societies who have helped to reveal our funds. And what has been done with these funds? This story will be unfolded as you listen to the Treasurer's and Work Convenor's reports. These reports will I am sure, clearly demonstrate what your Red Cross Branch has done, is doing and hopes to continue to do.

Other activities during the period under review were: The National Campaign for Red Cross Funds, The Jam and Honey campaign in co-operation with the Wainwright Women's Institute. Six hundred pounds of jam and honey were shipped through this branch and $25.00 cash donated by the Branch for this same campaign. Collection of Old Aluminum. Co-operation in the Dominion Government's appeal for $500,000.00 for medical supplies for Russia. This campaign is still in progress. Five hundred copies of the Red Cross Cook Book were printed and are being sold.

In closing my report I wish to express my thanks to the Officers and fellow members of the Executive for their co-operation and to all who have supported us in the great cause of the Red Cross during the past year and on behalf of this Branch I solicit the hearty support of our whole community for the year that is ahead because I am sure the need will be greater before Victory is won.

The report of the treasurer was presented by Mrs. J. G. Middleman and was in great detail. It showed that the branch has still a substantial bank balance as at close of the year, with no debts outstanding. (A full itemized statement of this report will appear next week.—Ed.)

Mrs. C. T. Lally, as convener of the Work Committee, read her report for the year which was as follows:

As convener of the Work Committee of our local branch of the Red Cross I wish to submit the following report for the year which was as follows:

We have had 147 ladies from town

NOTICE

Mrs. F. G. Roberts asks all younger married ladies and older girls who wish to assist in war work to meet at her home on Main Street tonight (Wednesday) at EIGHT P.M.

It is intended to form a club for the purpose of this endeavor, and only those willing to remain faithful to this effort should attend.

and district working for us as well as 11 different groups, including: The War Services League (Town); War Services League (Greenfields); C.O.I.T. Girls; Red Cross Groups from the Public and Separate Schools; Rose Willow W.L.; Mrs. Snyder's group of 'teen age girls; Girl Edge Group; Granddaddy Junior Red Cross and Battle View U.F.W.A. group, and the Patriotic Service Club in town. All of these groups have rendered very valuable assistance to our cause.

We have made 14 shipments, amounting to 3125 pieces of work. Of these 1807 pieces were for our soldiers (including 1175 pairs of socks).

Refugee work claimed a lot of our attention. For babies we forwarded 218 pieces.

We have also shipped, and have had acknowledged, three large cartons of lin-fold and gramophone records.

Four complete outfits for boys and two complete outfits for girls were made and donated by the War Services League. These were acknowledged separately. Also, we received 29 articles of clothing donated by members of the Women's Institute. These are not included in my totals above. The Women's Institute have made several very fine quilts for us throughout the year.

The Patriotic Service Club have been very industrious and all their efforts are for the Red Cross. They also have made several quilts for us.

Several very ardent Red Cross workers have moved away from Wainwright—some to other districts. We miss them and their cheery visits to our work room and know most of them will "do their bit" wherever they are to further the good cause.

Parcels of work going to our country workers have been carried free of charge and much credit is due to Mr. Gardner Boyd who has provided such a willing helper over a period of more than two years.

We have received much credit for the quality of our work sent in to Headquarters, not one article having been returned for alteration.

In conclusion, I want to thank the members of the Work Committee for their wonderful co-operation throughout the year, without which I could never have had such a report as this has been.

Each of the reports were adopted in regular form, and a hearty vote of thanks extended to those responsible.

In the election of officers for the ensuing year, the following were the final selections:

President—Mrs. O. R. Hamish
Vice-President—Mrs. Geo. Clark
Secretary—Mrs. Guy Gigney
Treasurer—Mrs. J. G. Middleman
Executives—Messrs. Graham, Conroy and Walts, and Messrs. G. Graham, H. Wilson, H. Smart, J. MacKenzie and Rev. A. Richard and L. Walts, Auditor—Chas. Horn.

Before closing the meeting it was decided that the regular monthly meeting is to be held in the Red Cross room at eight o'clock p.m. on the first Monday of each month.

The National Anthem was sung before dispersing.

It is noticed from the latest edition of the Alberta Gazette that the names of Mr. F. G. Roberts, P. S. McInnes and Mr. J. P. Watkins have been added to the list of commissioners for oaths for Alberta.

It should be noticed from the advt. on page 8 that a new club is in process of formation whereby the younger married women and older girls can assist in patriotic war service work.

Mr. E. (Bud) Cotton was among the number who gathered in Edmonton for the annual 49-star banquet and got together of this famous war aggregation of the World War I.

Canadian Editors Reach "The Front Line"

Canada's Newest and Lightest War Weapon

This is the third of a series of articles about conditions in Great Britain and other countries visited during six weeks in Europe and over the Atlantic. Written specially for the weekly newspapers of Canada by their own representative on the tour, Hugh Tompkins of the Fergus News-Record.

The first close contacts with war came at Bermuda. Because of bad weather at the Azores, the Dixie Clipper turned back during the night and the first six Canadian editors spent over a day on that island. Not only are there two naval bases on the islands, one British and the other American, but the big American PBV flying boats (Catalinas, the British call them), took off regularly every two hours or so to patrol the nearby ocean. It was obvious that the U.S. Navy was definitely in the war even then. During my stay in Bermuda, I had a chance to see several ships of that navy.

The first hint of personal danger came when we returned to the customs office on one of Bermuda's little islands. The word went out that our baggage was to be searched, because there was a danger that someone in Bermuda might have secreted a bomb among our clothing and if one of them exploded while the Clipper was in the air it would be just too bad. One of my bags had been broken open during the time I was in Bermuda, so I insisted on a thorough search of its contents. There was no bomb, and nothing seemed to be missing.

A First Grim Example of War

The first grim example of a world at war came the morning after the Clipper had left Bermuda. I wakened and stretched in my comfortable berth, and then looked out the little window. Eight thousand feet below, there was a great patch of oil upon the water, with long streaks out towards the west. Nearby, two little lifeboats floated on the calm expanse of ocean. From that height, they appeared to be empty, but perhaps I was mistaken.

I wondered what to do. No doubt the crew, watching all the time, had seen the same thing I had discovered. What would they do about it? Anxiously, I watched the shadow of the motor on the wing to see if it would circle and offer aid, though just what the Clipper crew could do seemed uncertain. Later, I learned that the radio operator had sent word to an American destroyer, which was already on its way to give help, after receiving an S.O.S. call. I never knew the name or nationality of the steamer, or the fate of the crew.

In Touch With the Enemy

At Lisbon, we came in closer touch with the enemy. Portugal is neutral. It may be that the warring nations find it to their advantage to keep the country that way. Lisbon is full of spies of all nationalities, refugees, people who once had money and now have none, gangsters who would make money out of the war. To that port only, in all Europe, American ships and planes have been allowed to go. The feeling of tension and intrigue soon becomes apparent to every visitor. There is a saying that "Germany doesn't even need to invade Portugal: Hitler can take the country by telephone any time he likes." That is partly German propaganda, but it doesn't make a stay in Portugal any more pleasant. Those who go to Lisbon now are not on holidays.

Canada's newest and lightest war weapon is shown at right, in the hands of a Canadian soldier. The Sten sub-machine carbine, an all-metal gun used in a similar manner to the American Thompson sub-machine gun, weighs only seven pounds and is designed specially for parachute troops.

Our stay in Lisbon while on the way to England was brief. It was midnight when our group cleared the Portuguese Customs. Out in a tiny courtyard, taxi drivers pushed and jostled and shouted in a strange language. The British Embassy people got us placed in a big car, supplied with Portuguese escudos and sent us away to Estoril Palace.

That 16-mile drive to the seaside resort of Estoril was the most exciting in my life. It was perhaps, a taste of things to come. Most Lisbon streets are narrow but two cars can pass with ease. But there is an added complication when there is also a street car running down the centre. In places, an automobile could not pass a street car. That did not seem to worry the driver. He would go at 60 or 70 miles an hour until he saw a street car coming; then he would jam on his brakes and turn into the nearest side street. Once he barely made the turn, running up on to the sidewalk. After the street car had passed, he backed out again and continued on his way to the hotel. It is said that Lisbon taxi drivers have just one accident—their last.

The porter at the hotel collected our previous passports and assigned room numbers, while sleepy waiters served our first European meal, which was excellent. B. K. Sandwell and I went up to our rooms in the elevator with a German and an Italian.

As International Airport I was away again, long before daylight, to Cintra airport. The Portuguese farmers must have spent hundreds of years building stone walls along the roads, and it was a foggy morning but this time the taxi driver was cautious and crawled over greasy pavements.

In a Europe at war, Cintra airport is surely a unique place. Out on the field stood three planes, one Dutch, one Portuguese and one Spanish. The Spanish one looked as if it would not lift off the ground; the Dutch plane was heavily camouflaged.

January, the ticket offices of the British Overseas Airways and the KLM (which is the Royal Dutch Airlines) are on one side of the hallway, and the Lufthansa (German) and the Italian Lines on the other. The passengers all go out to the field through the same doorway and are weighed on the same scales, in kilograms. A young Portuguese served us tea and cakes. He spoke English. He lived three years in New York and went to school there, but he still had a grievance against his teacher. She did not know that Portugal was a separate nation. She insisted he was a Spaniard. No wonder it rankled. A deep ditch separated the air field from a sheep pasture. On one side were the planes, backed by a group of ultra-modern buildings. On the other side was an old shepherd with a staff and flowing robes. As he walked, he called to his sheep and they followed him. He might have stepped right out of the Old Testament. Behind him, the mountains of Portugal were tipped with sunrise pink.

Flying Over Portugal I was glad when the plane rose from the bumpy runway of the Cintra airport and left the soil of Portugal behind. Somehow the air seemed more free and more safe, though really it was a dangerous trip that lay ahead. The Dutch crew looked like mere boys, but they said they would reach England at three o'clock that afternoon and they brought us down at one minute to three. There is no waiting for perfect weather on that trip; the planes run on a time schedule.

Grattan O'Leary and I sat in the front seat of the Douglas. The Ottawa editor slept much of the time, but I was interested in the almost perfect performance of that young crew, taking a land plane on a long sea voyage. I could see the altimeter and I knew with what skill they flew their Douglas through the dangerous air opposite the unfriendly coast of Occupied France.

As long as we travelled beside the coast of Portugal, the plane stayed low and I could see the little white houses with their red tiled roofs, the white stone fences along the roads, the churches on the hills, and an occasional city. Near Oporto, we came in over the swampy coast and landed on an airport which was little more than a pasture field. While the Douglas was being refueled, a train of tiny cars drew up beside a sugar refinery not far away. Along the borders of the airport was a stream. At a broad pool, Portuguese women were busy doing the family washing, beating the clothes on the stones and hanging them to dry on the bushes growing along the bank.

Over the Ocean in a Land Plane The route after leaving the northwest corner of Spain is probably a secret and no doubt it varies somewhat with each trip. We no longer flew low, but so far above the clouds that they looked like the Pringles in winter—an even, glaring white. The pilot chose a height of more than two miles above the water, and after that the altimeter needle never varied for hours at a time. It was a little too high for comfort. Looking down at my finger nails, I saw that they had turned a bright blue, and there was a numbness in my hands and feet. That wasn't important then. Far more important was the fact that an enemy plane could have been seen 25 miles or more away against the grey background. It is said that planes have been mobbed on that route, but none has ever been lost.

At noon, one of the Dutch boys gave me a box lunch and a light tray. The lunch was huge, but so was my appetite. There was a large cut of some kind of fowl which intrigued most of the Canadians. One editor ventured the opinion that it was cootich. Possibly it was a Portuguese turkey.

"All in the Front Line Now!" Before the British Isles were in sight, the windows of the plane were covered with locked shutters and the passengers saw nothing of the land until the plane came down with scarcely a bump on British soil.

I stepped out into the sunlight and looked around curiously. The low buildings were camouflaged. Walls of sandbags were built in front of the doors and windows. A big Wellington bomber, the first one I had ever seen, was taking to the air and passed over my head. The buildings of a city showed over a low hill and above the hill floated several barrage balloons. They looked exactly like the photographs I had seen so often—from that distance like silver hot-dogs in the sky, with a piece of the sausage hanging out one end of the bun.

This was our first sight of England in wartime! We were "all in the front line now!"

How Does Your Label Read?

SEEDTIME and HARVEST By Dr. R. W. Nashy Director, Agricultural Department North-West Line Elevators Association Seed Fairs

For the next two or three months we shall all be thinking about seed. Farmers will first decide what acreage must be devoted to wheat, coarse grains, corn, grass, clover, roots, etc. Then a decision respecting the most suitable variety of each crop must be made. Then, if new seed is necessary, will commercial seed, or should registered or certified stocks be secured and how much?

One of the best ways to obtain and to give ideas on these problems is to attend the Provincial Seed Fair. The Alberta Seed Fair will be held in Edmonton on January 21st and 22nd, and an Agricultural Short Course will be held in conjunction therewith.

University Farm Week has become one of the most important agricultural gatherings in Saskatchewan. This year it will be held at the University during the period January 12-16. Besides the Seed Fair, other important events included in Farm Week will be annual meetings of the C.S.A.A. (Saskatchewan branch), the Saskatchewan Field Husbandry Association and the Saskatchewan Agricultural Societies Association.

It is anticipated that the Manitoba Provincial Seed Fair and Short Course will be held as usual, but the date has not yet been set.

This year, again, the Agricultural Department of the North-West Line Elevators Association will erect an educational exhibit at Provincial Seed Fairs. The chief factors concerned in grading seed will be illustrated, and germinating seeds and magnified weed seeds will be on display.

World of Wheat

H. G. L. Strange,
Director, Research Department,
Searle Grain Company, Ltd.

This year for the first time registered First Generation seed of Regent wheat is available in small quantities. Farmers who desire to improve the quality of their crops of Regent should, I suggest, try to secure a few bushels of this First Generation seed. It is an improvement over the older strains.

Another good variety that farmers might now consider is Renown. The new First Generation seed of Registered Renown is the property of the improved foundation stock recently produced by the Rust Research Laboratory, Winnipeg. Up until now it has had one defect. The yield has been less than the yield of other rust resistant varieties. The yield of the new Registered strain, however, is decidedly better than the yield of that strain of Renown that hitherto has been available. Those, therefore, who like Renown for its fine bright plump kernel and for its other good qualities, might consider securing a little of this new First Generation Registered seed. In some districts the new strain has given as high a yield as the yield of any other variety. Some farmers tell me it is their favorite variety.

Following factors have tended to raise price: The U. K. Cereals Import Board has made large purchases of Canadian wheat recently. The Egyptian Government intends to import Canadian and Australian wheat to overcome a serious wheat shortage. Winter crops in Europe are reported to have received a poor start owing to unusually cold weather and shortage of labor.

Following factors have tended to lower price: Food supplies in the U.S. and Canada are of record proportion—Large amounts of Government owned and damaged wheat has been offered buyers in the U.S. recently. The weather continues favorable for harvesting in Argentina with yields good—Grain shipments across the Pacific are suspended indefinitely owing to war conditions.

WINTER CARE OF WORK HORSES

(Experimental Farms News)

Where native prairie hay, popularly known as "prairie wool", is plentiful, idle work horses, in reasonable condition, need no other food at any time of year. Salt is valuable to aid digestion and water is preferable to snow, but many horses have been wintered quite successfully on prairie wool snow and snow without either salt or water. An open shed is essential where a natural windbreak is not present, says R. Vance Niles, Dominion Experimental Station, at Scott, Sask.

Where the prairie wool is no longer available, the old plan of wintering must be modified. The thin horse requires more shelter and better feed than the horse in good condition. If the straw pile is the only source of roughage, salt becomes much more necessary. It induces a greater consumption of water which in turn helps to prevent impaction of the bowels, the cause of the death of many prairie horses. The best hay, if it pays good dividends here as horses drink more when the chill is taken from the water.

If horses can be given access to a prairie pasture for a few hours each day during winter, even the small amount of native grass constitutes a valuable supplement to the straw ration. Failing this, a small quantity of tame hay daily is beneficial.

The common kinds of straw are ranked as follows — barley, oats, wheat, rye, but the heads of barley or rye sometimes cause sores in the mouth.

Straw is sometimes cut in short lengths in inside feeding, and molasses is often used to encourage a greater consumption, but the value of the straw is not increased. Either plan may induce consumption of low-grade straw material which would otherwise be rejected, but such material is of doubtful value, particularly when the ration is already too bulky.

As for the molasses, it would often be more profitable to spend the money for grain. A light feed of grain once or twice per day or a shed of oats may prove to be a valuable supplement to the straw ration. It is well to remember that it is cheaper to maintain fleshing than to gain lost flesh.

Due to the failure of the oat crop in many sections of the prairie in 1941, some wheat will be used for horse feed. Care should be taken that it is free from mould. It is best rolled or ground coarsely and mixed with oats, bran, or cut hay to avoid digestive troubles.

SOIL DRIFTING IN THE SPRING

(Experimental Farms News)

Soil drifting usually is at its worst in the spring. The situation is especially acute if drifting has occurred during the previous fall or winter as fields are then covered with drift soil.

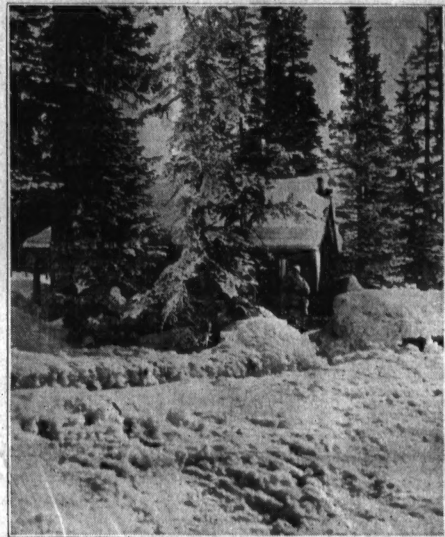

The situation is complicated because time must elapse after seeding before the crop makes enough growth to protect the soil. This critical period tests the farmer's ability to control drifting.

Fortunately numerous practices have been developed to prevent spring drifting, states A. E. Palmer, Assistant Superintendent, Dominion Experimental Station, Lethbridge, Alberta. Ploughing deeply enough to cover all loose soil and seeding immediately has been effective for severe conditions where there was moisture enough to promote growth. Listing strips through the field stop the drift sweeps on large areas sufficiently to permit cultivation and seeding of the unplanted strips. The Dominion Experimental Station at Lethbridge and other prairie stations will lend ladders to farmers for this purpose.

Duckfoot cultivating immediately after seeding has prevented drifting. Seeding with a duckfoot cultivator with seeder attachment or with a furrow drill has accomplished the same purpose.

Much drifting occurs when the grain is coming up. Farmers hesitate to roughen their fields at that time for fear of injuring the grain. Obviously the best way to avoid this drifting is to windproof the soil before seeding.

If this has not been accomplished, damage may be prevented by cultivating spots where drifting starts or covering them with straw or manure. Sometimes harrowing will hold the soil until the crop supplies protection provided there is at least some moisture in the soil.

Where fields get beyond control, ploughing and reseeded or strip listing has proved to be the remedy.

BRITANNIA'S BABIES

Nearly one thousand nurseries are now open throughout Great Britain today. Very many of them are wartime State nurseries brought into being by the call to married women to do work in the war.

There are simple Day Nurseries, caring for children whose mothers are absent only for the working day. There are "Children's Hotels" where the evacuated youngsters stay permanently. There are special residential centres for children who have been shaken by bombing.

All of them, staffed by registered nurses and dietitians, are a success. In a typical centre, at Bletchley in Gloucestershire, each child gained from one to four pounds in weight. This particular nursery caters for cases, most of whom suffered from anaemia and malnutrition apart from emotional disturbance.

All the nurseries accept children irrespective of their nationality. Sylvia Linnell, for example, is a small Austrian girl of three who had to be taught again how to walk. Now she runs and is going to a nursery for normal children.

Brenda Macey, 2, bomb-shocked, could not bear to be touched at first. She was scarcely able to eat her food and she had night terrors. Now she is well and happy once more.

The Women's Voluntary Services help in the work for Britannia's Babies and the American Red Cross has given it $5,000 pounds.

KING GEORGE'S VEGETABLES

War-time gardeners in Buckingham Palace grounds and in London's working class districts are the stars of a color film which has just been released. The film shows the public how not only these gardeners, but A.R.P. workers, schoolboys, hospital patients and housewives are joining Britain's 5,000,000 private gardens. It is probably the first garden news-reel, certainly the first in color.

A second color film deals with vegetable pests, while a third about tomatoes to growing will help British gardeners to replace the tomatoes usually imported from the Channel Isles. Shots of successful tomato growing on the roof of a cinema, in the yard of a public house and outside shops are shown in this film.

Lecturers are on tour with the film answering questions put by audiences. Last year they had 800 meetings in large towns and small villages, where they spoke to 50,000 people.

FURTHER SACRIFICES MUST BE MADE BY ALL

During these days millions of people throughout the whole Dominion will be following the age-old custom of visiting their friends and neighbors a "Happy and Prosperous New Year." If 1942 is to be a successful year for Canada and the British Empire every Canadian must resolve to do his or her full share in a mighty and formerly unequalled war effort, says the Drummer Mail.

Considering that we are at war against a powerful enemy, the year just passed has treated us Canadians fairly kindly. In the midst of starvation in an embattled world we have lived in comparative prosperity and plenty, as well as a comparative peace; but we can hardly expect to have a similar easygoing job in 1942. Entry of Japan into the titanic struggle has bolstered the forces of the Axis, and the actual fighting zone has been brought much closer to Canadian shores. Two thousand of our gallant Canadian troops who helped to defend the Boerenghooi have been apparently fallen to the enemy in Canada's greatest single loss of the war to date; and as this is written it appears that our splendid ally to the South (the powerful U.S.A.) is facing probable loss of their hold upon the Philippine Islands.

Canada's war effort MUST be stepped up in every possible way. Further troops must be called upon to defend the coasts of this country, and further fighting materials—guns, munitions and supplies—MUST be turned out for the fighting fronts and the continuance of the death struggle for freedom and humanity! Canadian citizens individually can do much to make 1942 a successful year! A further Victory Loan of $500,000,000 is being arranged for the next month (February), and the small investor will have to enter the picture more and more if the necessary funds for this is to be raised—AND IT MUST BE! Further taxation must be borne cheerfully and willingly.

It may be too much to expect that the year 1942 will bring the hoped-for victory for our enemies are strong and we are not yet at the peak of efficiency; however, a strong concerted effort on the part of us all during this year should put us in the position to grasp and hold the initiative in the year which follows.

Thus it behooves every Canadian in every walk of life to lend aid to the fullest extent to "see the thing through," and the finest way in

WORLD'S WEEK

HAROLD L. WEIR

Associate Editor of the "Edmonton Bulletin" and author of the daily column "From the News."

Collaboration between the three great powers leading the world struggle against Hitlerism was signally advanced in conversations between British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Soviet Premier Joseph V. Stalin and his foreign commissar, Vyacheslav M. Molotov, concluded in Moscow a few days ago.

Eden's visit to Russia, carried through under conditions of the Harold L. Weir greatest secrecy was a spectacular though logical complement to the Atlantic conference of President Roosevelt and Winston Churchill last August.

When the neighbors moved away, people left the farms and the old people tried to carry on. Families replaced them, many farms were abandoned, as any motorist may see. When the neighbors moved away, personal losses that cannot be reckoned were suffered by those who remained. The losses that could be counted were had enough. Schools emptied; some were closed. Municipal improvements increased in cost, with fewer to pay. Goods and services increased in cost, with less to buy with: Farm prices lagged behind. Even now, in wartime, the farm from low farm earnings to high city earnings continues, until the production of needed food is threatened.

The problem of the loss of neighbors and producers in the rural areas is of grave concern to all Canadians who realize that a fundamental of Canadian well-being is the production of food for a world that has never been well fed. The food supply for present needs and Canada's future prosperity depends upon a solution of Canada's agricultural problem. The tragedy of the neighborless farm family may become the tragedy of food shortages in neighboring towns and cities in Britain, and in allied countries.

No one knows when, or if, the allied forces will see action but vigilance certainly will not relax regardless. The drone of scout planes gives one unceasing evidence of that fact.

Work on the new locks on the transcontinental bridge, on the west coast, construction projects goes on regardless of the ever-present threat of attack. Skilled workmen from the States go down every week, some 500 of them to fill vacancies created by those unable to take the tropics, or to fill the demand made by the apparently unending expansion.

It is safe to say that the Panama zone will not be taken by surprise. The immense material losses suffered by the Germans in their retreat from Moscow are attributable to the rapidity of the Russian pursuit and the ability of the Red Army to perform repeated outstanding maneuvers against the retreating German columns despite the harsh conditions of the Russian winter.

An announcement in the official Russian press puts the body captured since Nov. 18 on the central front alone, at 2,119 tanks, 12,204 automobiles, 1,178 guns and thousands of trophies in other categories.

It is now obvious that the Russian counter-offensive was carefully prepared and organized for when the tide of battle turned, Stalin and his generals had masses of fresh reserves ready to throw into the battle to maintain a steady and devastating pursuit.

The Germans relying almost entirely on mechanized transport, were obliged to cling to highways and roads the heavy blanket of snow, covering intervening fields and forests, greatly restricted manoeuvrability.

This was a weakness which the resourceful Russians have exploited to the utmost. Besides their armored units, they have made considerable use of cavalry backed to make quick flank attacks against roads cluttered with German transport.

The reserves of Russian cavalry in the Moscow region were larger than anybody had suspected; it is doubtful, whether in any case, the Germans had taken them seriously. Since winter broke, these mounted divisions have displayed an effectiveness far beyond expectation.

They had no oil to freeze, no engines to break down, and they could be manoeuvred through any kind of terrain and under the worst kind of weather conditions.

They have performed brilliant outflanking manoeuvres especially in the southern Moscow front where Russian horsemen have captured scores of villages.

The Germans are reaping the bitter fruits of over-confidence and miscalculation. They surely miscalculated the fighting qualities and numbers of the Russian reserves. And to harp again on an old theme—they surely miscalculated the Russian winter. Quite apart from the

May I express the hope that the co-operation to which I have referred as having been so generously extended to the Government by the publishers during 1941 may be continued throughout the year 1942.

Yours sincerely,
J. L. SLEEVY
Ottawa, December, 1941.

Dear Sirs—We wish to very sincerely thank you for the donation of your paper to this Library for the past year. This paper has been read with real interest and satisfaction by hundreds of men from your district, as they came and went from this garrison, and we shall be glad to have you continue your contribution for the coming year.

In order that you may get a good idea of what our institution does and has for soldiers, we enclose a copy of our set-up for your perusal. With kindest personal regards, and wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, we remain,
Sgt. A. G. Low,
Garrison Librarian.

APPRECIATION TO THE PRESS
We are now approaching the end of the first year of operations under the general arrangement which we worked out in the fall of 1940 under which Canadian publishers set up a War Finance Publicity Committee to assist us in developing adequate promotional publicity for our War Savings Certificate and War Loan campaigns which are so vital a part of Canada's war effort. To me the association with your committee and the Canadian Publishers who have co-operated with this department through your committee has been a very pleasant and fruitful one. To all of these publishers I wish to express my thanks for their co-operation.

In public and private on many occasions I have taken the opportunity to express my appreciation of the wholehearted support which has been given by the Press of Canada to our war financing campaigns. The success of these campaigns during the past year has been such as to call forth comments from observers in other countries in regard to what they were pleased to call an outstanding Canadian achievement.

It is almost impossible for young people to buy out their elders and make payments that would permit the old couple to retire in modest comfort. The money needed for upkeep and repair could not be recovered. City earnings doubled while farm earnings were halved. Young

Minesweepers Are Vital Factor in War Effort

One of the vital contributions to our war effort is that of the ship-building industry. In this article I shall deal with just one type of ship being produced in Canada—the minesweeper.

Minesweepers are trim, speedy boats, extremely manoeuvrable, and capable of doing whatever duty as well as that of minesweeping. Their displacement is close to 1,000 tons. Depth charges are carried, and guns are mounted on their fore-decks. When travelling at moderate speeds the minesweeper can be turned around in its own length, and at full speed ahead can be turned in the opposite direction in twice its length.

When the Canadian Government decided to build Minesweepers one contract was let to a construction company in an eastern Canadian port.

Lying adjacent to the property where this construction company had its office, machine-shop, stores, etc., was an old shipyard where freighters were built during the last war. For many years the property had been used by a steel company for storage purposes. Today in this shipyard one can see five ships under construction at the same time. A year ago there wasn't a man employed in ship construction in this yard, but now there are 1,200 working 24 hours a day.

The superintendent in charge of construction is a man of wide experience in the ship-building industry. He supervised construction of freighters for the Government during the last war, and prior to that served on the River Clyde in Scotland, and in India. He is, in fact, the only member of the organization who has had any experience in the direction and supervision of ship-building.

Before the construction can be started a full size plan of the ship must be made from the blue-prints and laid out on the floor of the "hold." Moulds are made of wood, exact in design and detail down to the last rivet hole, for each plate that goes into the ship. First, the moulds for the keel are laid down, and from the rest the sides are reconstructed. The moulds are then taken to the punch-room and plates are cut to fit them.

A year ago the large punch-room, which covers about six acres, was absolutely void of the machinery. Rollers capable of rolling steel twenty feet long, six feet wide and quarter of an inch in thickness, to any desired ratio of armored strength of the two sides, the fighting in the last few weeks has demonstrated that the Russians are better fighters than man under the severe conditions of the Russian winter than their adversaries.

And there is no doubt that they are better equipped to meet these conditions.

After a vacancy of three months, St. Andrew's (Pres.) is again in charge of a minister in the person of Rev. C. J. Macleay who formerly had charge of churches in Australia, New Zealand, and New South Wales.

Two cutting trucks from town shipped by Messrs. Hocking and Forster journeyed to Villing last week to play for the Burns trophy in that town and returned home victorious.

Mrs. G. Sargant has just returned from her trip south where she was visiting at the old home in North Dakota.

Mrs. G. Hollingshead entertained a number of ladies at what at her home last Monday night.

A large attendance was on hand for the installation of officers in the local Odd Fellows Lodge when a new group of officers were installed for the ensuing year: J.P.G., Bro. W. Carrell; N.G., Bro. T. Lashmore; V.G., Bro. H. Ward; Secretary, Bro. F. McLeod.

A truly enjoyable time was spent by a large crowd at the New Year's dance put on in the theatre by the Wainwright L.O.O.F.

Mr. C. Omsat has arrived from Vancouver and opened up his new business shop in the old Star cafe building on Third Avenue.

Mr. Wm. Fox was a visitor to the city on business last week.

Many of the oil wells in the district have been busy lately and big returns in crude oil and gas are expected.

TEN YEARS AGO

On the last day of the year, a pretty wedding was solemnized when Miss Louise Benoit became the bride of Mr. Res. La France of Gilt Edge. A pleasant reception was held at the bride's home at Payton.

On New Year's night quite a number of old friends of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Perkins surprised them by dropping in for the evening to help celebrate their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. They were also presented with a beautiful mahogany clock.

A lively game was staged on Wednesday last when the Wainwright High School team journeyed to Irma to play a return match with their team, and returned home victorious. The herds of buffalo have been flourishing in Wainwright Park since it was started in 1906 with a herd of 716 and has grown to well over 12,000, with annual slaughters and transportations of the animals included.

A large crowd gathered in Greenshields hall on Wednesday to do honor to Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Morrison and daughter Leslie and a pleasant time was spent. A group of the old-timers told of their early experiences.

We learn that Rev. Father Doyle is making preparations to leave for Jasper, where he will enter a hospital for some weeks in an effort to improve his health.

Having improved nicely in health, Mrs. Roy Hastings has now returned to her home after her stay in the hospital.

Mrs. J. Bracciglini and children are staying for a couple of weeks' holiday with her mother.

EDGERTON

Old man Winter was a long time putting in an appearance, but there was no doubt whatever about his arrival last week end. However situated as we are, we have no real cause for complaint, so let's switch to another subject.

Approximately 30 young people gathered for a merry party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Kimball on Monday night, December 29th, the guests of honor being Chalmers and Gordon Jackson. Dancing seemed to be the chief form of amusement, and all present agreed that it was a wonderful evening. The party broke up around midnight after a bountiful lunch.

We are pleased to be able to state that Bob McKay is at last out of danger, although he is still a very sick man and it is understood that complete recovery will take some time.

The New Year's Eve dance in Pavey's Hall was—as usual—a very great success, with a large and happy crowd in attendance. 1942 was about four hours old when the weary orchestra ceased playing and, most reluctantly, the dancers dispersed, some to go home and sleep, others to a bacon and egg feast at 5 a.m. That was a brilliant idea and taking it all in all, the entire evening was a perfect ending to the holiday season.

Miss Lily Pon spent a couple of days with her family here, returning last Saturday to her two schools and various other activities in Edmonton. We hear that she is a very keen and energetic worker for the War Savings Campaign in that city. An example many of us would do well to copy.

Almost all the boys in uniform have returned to their respective training points, and here's to the hope we all share—that next year they will be able to enjoy the best of all holidays to the full, without thoughts of impending separation to mar the fun.

Mrs. Fred Ramsey had to leave the New Year's Eve Dance early and be bundled into bed with numerous plaster, hot bottles, etc. We understand that she is now feeling considerably better. Very sincere sympathy is extended to Fred, who received word from Ontario last week that his youngest sister had passed away, after a lengthy illness.

GREENSHIELDS

An enjoyable time was had at the War Services League Card Party in the hall on December 29th. After lunch the regular meeting was held and $10 voted to the Red Cross. Letters of thanks for candy were received from Gordon Hill, Paul Gerand and Fred Prosser. The prize-winners at cards were Miss Elsie Haywood, Mrs. Harold Merrick, Mrs. A. Bakland and Mr. D. Dunn.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Barnett were New Year's visitors in this district.

Miss Muriel Hill will commence teaching at St. John's for the coming term.

Miss Lillian Flueger has resumed teaching at Empire School.

Misses Winnie Jackson, Rita Valieu and Stella McIntyre have returned to Camrose.

Cpl. D. H. Jackson is enjoying five days leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Jackson of this district.

How Does Your Label Read?

The Women's Smartest Service

All this show of efficiency—and there, on top of the stenographer's desk, a bottle of scotch, well placed.

The reporter, who until then had been quite overwhelmed by the precision of the women soldier-secretaries she had seen in action at the Mewata barracks, and at Carrie, smiled indulgently at this little hangover from civilian life. This was familiar ground—this was a reminder that the women soldiers were still women first and soldiers second.

However the uniformed young lady sitting at the desk suddenly picked up the bottle of red fluid, and the reporter read, not "Purple Pirate," or "Raucal red," or some other fantastic name, but—"Correcting Fluid". The typist was using it in her work of getting out daily routine orders.

Whatever the reporter thought about the girls, their "boss," Sergeant W. J. Bagnall, who is in charge of the Centre Orderly room at Currie barracks thinks "They're doing a wonderful job. They caught onto a new routine, a tough program, very quickly, and they're not afraid of hard work."

Some of them, he said, have even been working every night in their own time, to catch up "From reveille to reveille," as one girl put it smilingly.

Mr. Bagnall was thrilled at the girls' advent into the administrative department at Currie. "There was such a shortage of stenographers, and this certainly helps to relieve the burden." Besides the six girls in the central orderly room there are one in the quartermaster stores, one in the mess's canteen, and two in the pay office.

Others are taking the army service course in motor transport, and others comprise the personnel of the hospital staff. There are 34 of them altogether, all busy, all earning not only their 90 cents a day but the respect of all the men who work beside them.

Colonel E. R. Knight, V.D., the officer commanding the Canadian Infantry (Rifle) Training Centre at Currie, is "very pleased" with them all. "They're exceptionally good, you know," he commented, "exceptionally good."

One might say of the women's army—"Never have so many worked so hard for so little—and enjoyed it so much."

At least, just a recital of the day-by-day activities of the women soldiers is completely exhaustive.

Nicholas Alexander, the sergeant-major in charge of their training at Mewata, told the reporter about it—with a sort of grin satisfaction, she thought. For instance, the girls rise at 6:30 a.m., and have breakfast, after which they clean their huts—"THOROUGHLY!" the sergeant-major says, with dark meaning.

The first parade is at 8:30, and after that they go on a route march for three quarters of an hour. The reporter asked how far they would go on a route march, and received the answer, "Well, they go 120 paces a minute, that is, 100 yards a minute for 45 minutes... figure it out for yourself."

Following the route march, the girls have three lectures of three quarters of an hour each, with 15 minute breaks in between. In these they learn about such things as discipline, and "interior economy," which isn't nearly as exciting as it sounds, meaning merely administration within the unit.

They have lunch at 12:30, and the parade falls in at the armories at 1:45.

The afternoon is spent in "basic training," that is, elementary drill. They have three-quarter-hour periods.

VANCOUVER

Of course you're coming to Vancouver for Christmas—it's the right way to break the monotony of the long dark days. You'll enjoy every minute of your stay at the Grosvenor—excellent dining service—quiet, comfortable homey rooms—the great lounge, and open fireplace—writing rooms—everything you desire, and shopping and theatres around the corner. Rates from $2.00 up. 180 rooms.

of what the sergeant-major describes as "real hard work" following which, if they have the strength they march back to the barracks. From then until supper time at 5:30 they occupy the idle hours with kitchen fatigue, mending pie picket, and so on. And then—from six o'clock until ten, their time is their own.

They have one late pass a week, which privileges them to stay out until two o'clock. Otherwise it's lights out at ten. And then—from six o'clock until ten, their time is their own.

They have one late pass a week, which privileges them to stay out until two o'clock. Otherwise it's lights out at ten. And then—from six o'clock until ten, their time is their own.

In an office at Mewata barracks marked "Orderly Room," are a number of big brown envelopes, bearing the stamps "On His Majesty's Service." Each one represents a member of the women's army, for each contains the entire life record of one recruit.

Here it is that the Canadian Women's Army Corps in Calgary is administered. Here, Mrs. Ethel English, the officer commanding of "company," Mrs. Leona McIlvanna, and Miss Pearl Brent, together with a staff-sergeant, work from 8:30 until 10 o'clock every day. Here it is that the complaint is so often heard that "there are just not enough days in the week."

They are just as efficient, they dress as well, march probably a little better. In nearly all respects, a woman soldier exactly resembles her male counterpart.

But there's one exception—when a woman soldier salutes—she smiles. It's against the regulations, but women are so used to smiling a greeting, that they can't suddenly stop. As a consequence they salute smartly, in the most military fashion—and then break into an R.A.V.P. grin.

It's a delightful habit, and one which might very well be generally adopted. Perhaps one day the company sergeant-major will be bellowing at his men, "Okay, Okay! but when you do that—SMILE!"

Alberta Links To National Highway

Completion of the Trans-Canada highway as a national motor road is assured in 1942, road crews in northern Ontario having made good progress on the final sections.

When this road is finished, motorists will be able to travel directly across the dominion. As has been claimed, this will mark the opening of a new era in the history of Dominion transportation.

In order to complete this final link of the national road, the Ontario government is spending over $6,000,000. The Alberta Motor Association has moved to have the provincial government give regard to changed attention when there is an all-Canada highway.

Meeting in Calgary last month, the A.M.A. passed the following resolution:

"Resolved that the government of Alberta, in view of the coming opening of the Trans-Canada highway between eastern and western Canada, be urged to make all possible highway improvements looking to the increasing opportunities for connecting the highway system in the southeast and eastern part of this province with the neighboring highways in the United States and province of Saskatchewan."

CHAPTER VI On The Trail

Early the following day, the tall Canadian and his partner directed their attention to the New Orleans police department, where a grizzled old veteran of many years' service in the eternal campaign against crime welcomed them heartily; especially McLeod, representing as he did, one of the most colorful organizations of his kind in the world.

"Our own G men haven't done so badly for themselves, though," the young woman of the F.B.I. stoutly defended Mr. Hoover's under-cover boys.

"If they ever give your fellows a horse apple," the Sergeant grinned at Marion, while the old police chief smiled at their friendly rivalry, "we'll have to take a back seat, I'm afraid."

"If the rest of your 'Mounties' can do any more with a horse than you've done," the girl threw Larry's admission that he'd never ridden one of the footed creatures back in his teeth, "I'm afraid the laurels of a famous force are due to fade like the conventions of my grandmother's era."

"You can't beat 'em, chief," McLeod shrugged his shoulders and closed one eye at the police official.

"A woman will always have the last word, no matter what it costs. That's why a certain gentleman in Washington put Miss Cameron on this case. Instead of applying the old rule of setting a thief to catch a thief, the idea being tried in this instance is the how one of setting a cat to catch a cat, a scheme I didn't think much of at the beginning, although I must admit I've revised my early opinions since we left Washington. Miss Cameron has really been invaluable up to the present moment."

"To which egotistical remark there is only one answer," Marion smiled. "Being a lady, however, she flashed a mocking glance at Larry as she handed the chief the report on, and picture of the quarry sent from Washington. "I'll have to let you guess for yourself."

"Why! This is a photograph of the 'Nymph in Black!' the New Orleans official gave a smothered gasp of startled surprise. "What in the world has she been up to?"

"Murder—possibly!" the Canadian replied. "Theft of military documents—certainly!" he added, "and as for me, I've been as busy as a bee in your fair city, we thought you people might be able to give us a lead? She was last heard of at Niagara Falls, Ontario, about ten days ago, from where she decamped across the border in an American car at three a.m. on a Sunday morning."

"I don't think we know much about her down here," the chief murmured thoughtfully, "except that she was well-known in cabaret circles during the past season. But perhaps we'd better have a word with the 'Feds,' as the boys call the best men on my city squad. He has a nose for gathering information that's long enough to reach into the lowest depths of a rabbit warren."

"So that's who the 'Nymph' turns out to be! The 'Ferret'—who had been introduced to the out-of-town investigators under his proper name of Jackson—pursed his lips after listening to the highlights of the case from his chief."

"Know anything more about her, Jackson?" his superior queried, when the detective had studied the photograph and read the report.

"Nothing much since she's become the 'Nymph,' the 'Ferret' confessed disgustedly, "although I was certain I knew her when she first appeared at Kelley's."

"The little alterations I pointed out to the Sergeant must have been pretty good, then," Marion indulged in a discreet smile at the inference in Jackson's remark.

"They fooled me, by God!" the New Orleans detective retorted, "She looks as little like Jean Ahlers, or Jeanne König, or Madam Von Lutz, as I look like Abe Lincoln."

"But Lincoln is dead!" the chief looked up.

"I know it," Jackson replied with a laconic grin, "and for general purposes the Ahlers, König, Von Lutz woman is dead, too, that is, as far as recognizing her very easily in her present character is concerned. She hasn't done very much to herself, but it's efficient, believe me. All I could ever feel when I saw her at Kelley's was a haunting notion that I knew her—your know, one of those cases where you're certain you've met a person before, but can't for the life of you recall where it was—or who they are."

"The report from Washington says that's a clever woman," McLeod reminded them.

"Also attractive—and unscrupulous!" Miss Cameron added softly. "Don't forget those qualifications in your summing up."

"When did you bump into her before?" the chief turned again to Jackson, who had dropped into an attitude of deep study during the foregoing remarks.

"In Mexico City," came the prompt answer. "You remember when I was down there on that counterfeiting case?" he looked towards his superior, who nodded in assent. "Well, that was where I saw Jeanne Von Lutz, although she didn't go under that name for professional purposes down there. She called herself the Mexican Rose, wore brilliant Spanish costumes, and her hair was done in a shingled bob. I believe it was her usual look, just to make herself look different to the other janes around the place. Her favorite hang-out was a place called the Mexican German Club, but I have my own ideas as to the kind of joint it really is."

"That must have been last year then," the chief interrupted.

"That was in September, 1940," Jackson nodded in reply.

"Just before her deportation by us?" Miss Cameron recalled the item to that effect in the report from headquarters.

"That I can't say, for sure," the detective replied.

"It might have been afterwards," the Sergeant, who was following the conversation closely, reminded them.

"Anyway, it's immaterial," the police chief pointed out. "The main thing for your purposes," he looked at Miss Cameron and McLeod, "is that this Mexican-German Club appears to be the pivot from which your suspect formerly operated."

"I'm inclined to think so," Marion agreed.

"I'm sure of it!" Jackson snapped. "What about this husband of hers?" Larry hoped that Jackson had more to tell. "This Von Lutz who was a chemist, and believed to be an ex-officer of the old Imperial German army?"

"He's a tough proposition, according to the old bit of gossip I picked up while hunting for my counterfeiter," the detective chuckled. "But I don't believe the Mexican police have ever had their hands on the bird. I saw them for some help on my job and we went through the records pretty thoroughly, but Von Lutz has either been smart—or lucky!"

"So the husband is still an enigma," from the chief. "Is that it?"

"I guess that's about it," Jackson stood up to take his leave. "But it was my right," he addressed himself to Marion and Larry. "I'd sure give that layout down in Mexico City the once-over. Anything else, chief?"

"No. That seems to be about all you can do for our friends at present, Jackson."

"There is something else you can do for us, chief, it's not too much of an inconvenience," McLeod requested, after Jackson had left them alone again.

"Anything I can," the pleasant old veteran replied.

"If we decide to run down to Mexico and try picking up the trail from there, would it be possible to store Miss Cameron's car in the police garage until we call for it on our way back?"

"That we may need it, Larry!" the girl gasped. "It's not too far to drive."

"It's not too far," the Sergeant agreed, "but time's too precious. If we do go to Mexico City, we can hop in a plane and be there to-morrow, which is a lot more practical than spending three or four days on the road."

"I think your partner is right, Miss Cameron," the chief agreed with the "Mountie." "We can take good care of your car, if necessary," he smiled at Marion. "And if you decide to go, I'll have our mechanic check it over thoroughly while you're away, so it will be in first-class shape on your return."

"That would be very good of you," the young woman thanked the old chief with a charming smile of appreciation. "That's true Southern hospitality, all right, and it's very kind of you to suggest it."

"Not at all. Perhaps some day you'll be able to return the favor—I've got to get to Washington."

"Or Ottawa," the Sergeant added with a cordial invitation to look him up, should duty or pleasure ever take the New Orleans policeman that far north.

"One never knows," the chief shook hands with the visitors, who promised to let him know their plans later in the day.

"If that's the best we can do," Larry scanned the alternative trip which would put them at their destination in the early hours of the morning, "that's the time we'd better go, I guess."

"No. I can do it through the Post Office. We have an arrangement whereby F.B.I. operators can cash expense vouchers with all local Postmasters in the U.S."

"Pretty good idea. If we get stuck down south," Larry could not forbear mentioning the efficiency of his own organization, "I can do likewise at the Canadian Legation in Mexico City, so there's no fear of our running short of cash."

"We'll have to delay our departure until to-morrow morning, I'm afraid," Miss Cameron announced, when she reported to her companion after checking up on the air-line services. "No connections?"

Hints for the Household

TEMPTING BREAKFAST GETS FAMILY OFF TO GOOD START

If you want to start the family off to a happy day, make the first meal a tempting one. There's really no excuse for hum-drum slap-dash breakfasts. Variety in fruit and eggs and breads is just as easy as monotony; and a good cup of coffee is just as easy to make as a poor one.

Whether you use drip coffee equipment, a percolator or a plain coffee pot, remember that the secret of coffee success is to keep the apparatus scrupulously clean, to measure the quantity of water and coffee exactly, and to time the brewing to the second. You can pour second cups generously if you use decaffeinated coffee for nobody needs to count cups when this brew is served. Remember that decaffeinated coffee needs slightly longer brewing—when made by pot or percolator—to bring out its full flavor.

You can add welcome variety to breakfast if you serve an omelet thickened with quick cooking tapioca.

Drip Coffee

Use one well-rounded tablespoon drip grind decaffeinated coffee for each cup (½ pint) of boiling water. Preheat drip coffee pot. Put coffee in upper compartment of pot. Pour fresh, briskly boiling water over it. Cover and let stand in warm place until all water has dripped through once. Remove upper compartment and cover pot. Serve.

Fluffy Omelet

2 tablespoons quick cooking tapioca
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup milk, scalded
1 tablespoon butter
4 egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon colored
4 egg whites, stiffly beaten
Add quick-cooking tapioca, salt, and pepper to milk and cook in double boiler 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear and mixture thickened, stirring frequently. Add butter. Cook. Combine with egg yolks, stirring constantly. Fold in egg whites. Pour into hot, buttered, 9-inch frying pan. Cook over low flame, 3 minutes. Then bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.), 15 minutes. Omelet is sufficiently cooked when a knife inserted comes out clean. Cut across at right angles to handle of pan, being careful not to cut all the way through. Fold carefully from handle to opposite side and serve on hot platter. Serves 6.

Lemon Celery Victor

1 bunch celery, tender portions, or 3 celery hearts
Cut into desired lengths (1 to 4 inches). Parboil in salted water 10 minutes. Drain. Cook 10 to 15 minutes longer in broth made by combining:
1 pint beef broth or consommé
1 teaspoon celery seed
6 pepper corns
4 tiny, dry red peppers
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1 large or 2 small lemons, cut in thin slices.
¼ cup minced pimiento

Marinate until cold. Drain off liquid, retaining spices and lemon slices. Serve as an appetizer or a meat accompaniment.

PIE DAYS ARE HERE

Every day is pie day to the average man but women sometimes falter at the idea of pie for dessert when the thermometer is in the eighties and a hot kitchen fails to appeal.

But cooler weather means pie days for all. A little heat feels good, a pie tastes good—so let's go. Here are two luscious lemon pie recipes to start the season. Try these and see if you ever before turned out such a lemon pie:

Lemon Souffle Pie

1/2 cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
3 tablespoons hot water
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup sugar
3 egg yolks, very well beaten
Cook in double boiler, stirring occasionally, until somewhat thickened (about 15 minutes). Fold into:
3 egg whites, beaten stiff with ¼ cup sugar
Fill 10 inch baked pie shell. Bake in moderate oven (325 degrees F.) about 15 minutes, or until delicately browned.

Golden West Lemon Pie

½ cup lemon juice
1 teaspoonful grated lemon peel
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup water
3 eggs, whole
Beat vigorously with egg beater from 5 to 10 minutes. Bake in unbaked 8-inch pie shell for 20 minutes in hot oven (425 degrees F.) then 10 minutes in slow oven (250 degrees F.).

HEALTH

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

TORONTO—In the nutrition field and in the campaign to abolish diphtheria, public health measures known in Canada are now being used for the improvement of public health in Great Britain. It was disclosed recently in a bulletin of the Health League of Canada.

Toronto's record in diphtheria control is now being spread throughout Great Britain by means of the press, radio, movies, bill-boards, and posters, according to a letter received by Toronto's medical officer of health, Dr. Gordon P. Jackson, from S. F. Wilkinson, director of public relations for the British Ministry of Health.

"How Toronto beat diphtheria" is the heading on large posters displayed in hundreds of British towns and cities. The poster says: "We can do likewise. Its up to you." It goes on to show how in 1929 Toronto had 1022 cases of diphtheria and 64 deaths, and how, after a campaign for immunization began, the cases dropped to 56 in 1933, with five deaths, and in 1940 there were no cases, end of course no deaths.

The British Ministry of Health has asked Dr. Jackson to send them full details of how Toronto co-operated with voluntary organizations such as the Health League of Canada, how clinics were set up, and how parents were persuaded that they should have their children protected against diphtheria.

Many other cities in Canada have had a "No diphtheria" record during the past year, Health League Officials said. But in some centres of Canada the disease still takes its toll. Diphtheria could be completely wiped out in Canada, if proper health educational methods were adopted and parents had their children toxoided.

Visit to Canada of Sir Wilson Jamieson, chief medical officer of the British Ministry of Health, resulted in his adopting a new diet for expectant mothers in Great Britain. The diet evolved after extensive surveys of expectant mothers in Toronto, and careful tests had been made, has proven, according to medical authorities, that proper food can reduce the infant and maternal mortality rate.

Every day the sleeping ETAO ET TORONTO—Every day the sleeping and dining car services of the Canadian National Railways must provide domestic services for travelling guests on a large scale. Night after night in the numerous sleeping cars operating between Vancouver and Halifax and rolling across the border to points in the United States an average of 3,000 passengers find comfort in bunks, compartments or chaperettes, making a total of more than a million travellers using these sleeping accommodations within the year. The National Railways also maintain restaurant services in dining cars, cafe cars and buffets over the same extensive area and, during a year, these prepare and dole out serve 3,250,000 meals, ranging from simple snacks to substantial dinners featuring charcoal broiled steaks.

Happyman Bedtime Stories

THE CLEVERNESS OF MRS. GROUSE

A keen and ready wit attends The one who on himself depends. —Old Mother Nature.

Of course you know why Mrs. Grouse was so persistent in driving away the young rabbit from the neighborhood of the big tree in the Green Forest behind which he had attempted to follow her. The first time she had flown in his very face and struck him with his stout wings and pecked him with her stout bill and scared him almost to death. You see he had almost stepped on her as she sat on her nest on the ground at the foot of that tree. When curiously brought him back; for he had been too frightened and surprised to see who or what had attacked him, she was not on her nest. She had promptly threatened him and he, being young and ignorant of the ways of his neighbors in the Green Forest, had again taken to his heels.

She had peered into all sorts of places which you might call secret places.

"I don't want him around. He couldn't hurt me and wouldn't if he could, and he wouldn't meddle with my eggs, but he is young and doesn't know much and it would be just like him to hang around here and without meaning to would give away my secret to some one who would try to catch me or who would destroy my eggs," Mrs. Grouse excused herself after chasing the small Rabbit away from the neighborhood the second time.

She didn't return immediately to the nest. In fact it was some little time before she returned. When she did it was with the greatest caution. She was alert without appearing so to an extent that would attract attention. She listened to every sound. Not even the faintest escaped her attention. And as she neared the nest she was somewhat so to keep under cover where no cover was. And when she had settled herself on the fifteen precious eggs you might, not knowing she was there, have looked right at her, unless you happened to catch the sparkle of two bright watchful eyes.

Mrs. Grouse had done a lot of looking around before she had settled on that spot for her nest. I suspect that if you or I had been looking for a likely place to find a grouse nest we wouldn't have looked there. I suspect that this was equally true of certain Green Forest folk who might be interested in a nest filled with eggs, or in the one sitting on those eggs. She had looked at more secluded places. She had peered into sorts of places which you might call secret places. And always she had come back to this big tree where, compared with some of the other places, it was open.

"No one will think to look for a nest here," she would say to herself. "They will look in some of those hidden places because they will think that I will choose such a place. But a place like this they will pass without looking. The ground is covered with dead brown leaves and my coat matches them so nicely in color that if I keep still they may even look at me yet not see me. There is an old log here that will partly hide me and the nest. It is far enough off the Lone Little Path not to be noticed by those using it. And if I have to fly quickly there is nothing in the way."

So that is where Mrs. Grouse made her nest. It was just a shallow depression between the old log and the tree, hidden from one direction by the former and from the opposite direction by the latter. It was lined with brown dead leaves and there were many more of these on the ground all about it. She had had an eye to these when she had chosen that place. She expected to have a

PLANES of THE RCAF and how to spot them

APPROVED BY THE ROYAL CANADIAN AIR FORCE

Moorduyn Morseman

CANADIAN-DESIGNED and Canadian-built as a transport aircraft to meet year-round operational conditions in this country, the Norseman single-engine high-wing monoplane is a sturdy airplane with large weight-carrying capacity. There is nothing spectacular about its appearance or performance, but it has achieved a great reputation as a most reliable aircraft.

It is used in the Royal Canadian Air Force, principally as a wireless trainer, and has been affectionately nicknamed the "Flying Classroom." It can conveniently carry a pilot, instructor and half-a-dozen embryo wireless operators or navigators of the bomber squadrons of tomorrow.

It is constructed of welded tubing fuselage with fabric-covered wings and has a fixed undercarriage on which wheels, skis or floats can be fitted with equal ease.

A 550 h.p. Pratt and Whitney Wasp engine gives the Norseman a top speed of 170 m.p.h. at 5,000 feet and a cruising speed of 150 m.p.h. Gross weight is 6,450 pounds and the wing span is 51 feet, 6 inches. Maximum range is 870 miles at 150 m.p.h.

The Norseman can be recognised by its relatively long wing, the enclosed cabin and the full engine-cowling.

special use for some of them. And she did. So she made her nest and even Mr. Grouse didn't know where it was. And there in time she filled it with fifteen brown eggs.

On these she had set day after day undisturbed until the little Rabbit had almost stepped on her, and even he didn't find the nest, for she had scared him so badly that he had seen nothing but a very angry bird before taking to his heels. When later curiously brought him back she had put him to flight again before he was near enough to the big tree to look behind it and he was still wondering what was the matter with Mrs. Grouse. A clever bird was Mrs. Grouse. She needed to be.

A.M.A. WILL URGES BOARDS CAMPAIGN

Campaigning to induce the provincial government to "ear-mark" all motor revenues for road maintenance and construction purposes, any surplus funds to be invested in dominion of Canada war, is to be continued by the Alberta Motor Association.

Decision to continue the campaign was made at the recent annual meeting of the A.M.A. in Calgary.

Program of the campaign during the past six months was reported to the meeting of provincial directors by A.B. Mackay, of Calgary, chairman of the special committee named to carry out the program.

No less than 23 municipal bodies in the province have endorsed the A.M.A.'s demands that motor revenues, such as the large sums from motor licenses and gasoline tax, be marked specifically for highway purposes, according to the committee's report.

Distribution of some 7,000 pamphlets which show why motor revenues should be spent on roads, also was completed by the A. M. A.

During the coming months the organization plans to intensify its campaign. It contends that millions of dollars taken from the motorists in provincial taxes have been diverted to general revenue purposes, instead of being spent on roads and thus help to build up the tourist industry.

Toronto, December—Average loads carried by freight trains on the Canadian National Railways for the first ten months of 1941 amount to 735 tons, as against 608 tons carried under similar conditions during the comparable period of 1929, peak year in system traffic. During the same comparative periods the speed of freight trains has increased by three miles per hour while coal consumption for each 1,000 gross ton miles of freight has decreased by 16 pounds.

Wartime Tourist Traffic To Increase

Tourist traffic from the U.S. into Canada's national parks, the finest of which are located in Alberta, may be substantially increased during the new year, according to officials of the Alberta Motor Association.

Instead of U.S. entry into the war curtailing tourist travel, the opposite may be the case. Tour officials south of the border have expressed the belief that there will be a greater need for recreational diversions, particularly for those engaged in a stepped-up war production program.

In consequence, U.S. people will be more inclined to travel. Many will take the inland instead of the coast routes, in view of war conditions, which should result in larger flow of traffic over the highways leading to Alberta.

The prospect of a larger volume means the need of better highways in Alberta to take care of this movement.

From Jan. 1 to Sept. 1, last, 24,600 U.S. cars entered Alberta through several customs ports, an increase of 3,199 over the similar period of 1940. In 1942, U.S. travel is bound to be largely increased. That makes it essential that the province prepare to spend increased millions of dollars, which now are extracted from the motorists and put into the general revenue fund, instead of building up finer highways for Alberta.
